```
File  Edit  Selection  View  Go  Run  Terminal  Help                    ← →                              🔎 Search                                                      ▯ ⊡ ▢ ▢  —  ⬜  ✕

    <> index.html ×   # design.css                                                                                                                                                            ▢ ···

    C: > Users > HUAWEI > Desktop > IntroToComputing > <> index.html > 🔷 html > 🔷 head
    Search (Ctrl+Shift+F)    ng="en">
     2        <head>
     3            <meta charset="UTF-8">
     4            <meta name="viewport" content="width=device-width, initial-scale=1.0">
     5            <title>Cataluna Portfolio</title>
     6            <link rel="stylesheet" href="design.css">
     7            <link rel="icon" type="image/jpg" href="images/favicon.ico">
     8
     9            <script src="https://kit.fontawesome.com/78ad9abedd.js" crossorigin="anonymous"></script>
    10
    11     </head>
```

The <head> element in HTML
Positioned between the <html> and <body> tags, the <head> element serves as a container for metadata, or information about data.
Data about the HTML document is called HTML metadata. There is no display of metadata.
 Character sets, styles, scripts, document titles, and other meta information are typically defined by metadata.